Senior Manager

sam.wiley@saltmarshadvisors.com

Sam is a senior manager in the Tax & Accounting Services practice of Saltmarsh. She specializes in bringing order to the complex financial lives of business owners and high-net-worth individuals.

With a background that includes large-scale accounting firms and publicly traded companies, Sam is seasoned in resolving technical challenges that require more than a standard solution. She doesn't just manage compliance; she acts as a central resource for her clients, helping them see how every piece of their financial picture fits together.

Sam is recognized for her practical, collaborative approach to tax advisory. She views her role as a problem-solver who translates intricate tax data into clear business intelligence, allowing her clients to understand the "why" behind their strategy. By untangling the most difficult variables, Sam provides the clarity and stability needed for her clients to move forward with confidence.
